Nixon urges strong resistance to avoid higher cost of living

WASHINGTON(UPI) — President Nixon said today Americans' cost of living could rise even faster in the months ahead if they "do not firmly resist temptations to new inflationary policy."

In a message to Congress, Nixon said the chief dangers to a renewed inflationary spiral were demands by labor for higher wages and by business for higher prices, plus pressure in Congress for more federal spending and a cut in personal income taxes.

Nixon's warning prefaced a mid-year report on the health of the economy by his three-member Council of Economic Advisers. The CEA said the nation would probably escape a recession this year but that heavy inflation overseas posed new problems for the recovery of the economy.

The President had announced in a weekend radio address that he was asking Congress for a cost of living task force to keep watch on inflation.

In his message, Nixon repeated the general themes of the radio speech. He said the output of American industry had turned up after a five month decline while the retail price spiral had slowed.

Unemployment has stabilized around the 5 per cent level, he said, far short of the 8 per cent jobless rate predicted for this spring by some pessimistic economists.

But the President warned that these gains must be coupled with "strong and responsible policy actions."

"There is special danger that the decline of the inflation rate will be small and soon reversed if we do not firmly resist temptations to new inflationary policy," he said.

Even so, the CEA predicted that the cost of living by the last three months of 1974 will have slowed to a rate "in the neighborhood of 7 per cent." This would compare with the current 12 per cent inflation pace, highest in a generation.

Stabilizing food and energy prices were the key reasons for the CEA's relatively optimistic inflation forecast but headway in these two sectors "will still leave a stubborn inflationary process under way in the rest of the economy," the economic panel said.

In his Saturday speech Nixon described the task force as a "small, flexible organization within the executive office," which would "monitor wages, prices, industry bottlenecks, supply shortages and other factors that bear on inflation."

In the same speech he reported "encouraging signs" that "the worst is behind us" with respect to inflation and other economic problems.

The next day, Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, took a less optimistic view, telling a commencement audience at Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill., "If past experience is any guide, the future of our country is in jeopardy. No country I know of has been able to maintain widespread economic prosperity once inflation got out of hand."

County employe strike rumor denied by administrator

By DICK PRAUL

Rumors that a county employe organization has delivered a strike threat to management were denied Friday by County Administrative Officer Raymond D. Johnson.

But at the same time it was learned that the long-established County Employees Assn., currently said to be stymied in bargaining sessions with county administrators over requests for a 14 per cent across board pay boost, plus fringe benefits, has removed a no-strike provision in its articles.

A spokesman for the employes association confirmed the no-strike provision has been removed "by membership vote."

But he added that he could not comment on reports that the association is having printed a questionnaire asking if its members are willing to support a strike vote later, if needed. However, a source within the association said this has been done.

Johnson indicated he wasn't surprised at the rumors of possible strike threats. He said he had heard of the reports, and declared he felt they had sprung up possibly in the wake of the recent bitter election fight involving the County Employees Assn. and the AFL-CIO Service Employees International Union.

A County Employees Assn. spokesman said he estimated the election result was that the association and union now both are at virtually the same strength, having somewhere less than 1,100 members each, either signed up or potential members.

County government, which now has about 2,900 employes, has been relatively free of work stoppages in its century of operations until recent years. The Social Workers Union, which is affiliated with the expanding Service Employees International Union, conducted the first strike in modern county government history. Then came the strike of sheriff's deputies.

A new note of militancy has crept into the County Employees Assn. since the Board of Supervisors voted last year to implement a new employer-employes relations policy which has had the effect of providing more membership strength to the union while cutting the strength of the independent County Employees Assn. which had rarely seen eye to eye with Johnson.

Protestant majority quits in N. Ireland

BELFAST (UPI) — The Protestant majority of Northern Ireland's coalition government resigned today in the face of a 14-day-old Protestant general strike that has moved the province close to civil war. The resignation left Ulster without an effective local government.

Northern Ireland ticked closer to a total power blackout, and the Irish Republican Army (IRA) placed Catholic communities on a war footing should civil war break out.

Chief Minister Brian Faulkner and the other Protestants on the Northern Ireland governing council called an "executive" handed in their resignations after a three-hour meeting of the 11-man group.

Members of the two minority parties—the Roman Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party and the middle-of-the-road Alliance party—withheld immediate action, the spokesman said.

The Protestant strike was called to protest against the power-sharing form of government and demand direct rule from London. Protestants fear that if they share power with Roman Catholics now they eventually will come under the rule of Catholic Dublin.

Thousands of Protestant farmers converged today on Stormont, the seat of government in Belfast, to demonstrate in support of the strike called to protest against the province's power-sharing government.

In London, Prime Minister Harold Wilson cut short a vacation and flew back to the capital amid calls for the vacationing British Parliament to be recalled for an emergency session on the Northern Ireland situation.

Holiday deaths near 600 mark

United Press International

The three-day Memorial Day holiday weekend traffic toll neared the 400-mark today, falling short of a preholiday estimate by the National Safety Council.

The final count was expected later today.

The council had estimated that between 450 and 550 persons would die in traffic accidents and another 21,000 to 26,000 would suffer disabling injuries between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday.

A United Press International count at 11 a.m. EDT showed at least 390 persons had died in traffic accidents.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:

Traffic	390
Drownings	110
Planes	15
Other	57
Total	572

California had more traffic deaths than any other state, 41.

GOP leader urges probers to give up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leader John J. Rhodes urged the House Judiciary Committee today to give up its attempts to subpoena President Nixon's tapes.

Rhodes said the committee's impeachment inquiry should begin to call witnesses and to interview Nixon at the White House rather than continue its pursuit of tapes.

"A tape is hearsay," the Arizona congressman told a news conference. "There isn't any doubt about it. The best way to get evidence is to question a witness.

"I don't see any profit of going over this hassle over tapes any more. They may now be chasing a rainbow."

At the same time, Rhodes would not defend the White House edited transcripts as equal to the tapes themselves.

He called the transcripts "the worst evidence there is. It's double hearsay."

Jaworski tells evidence of IRS abuse by White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said today he has evidence of White House efforts to "abuse and politicize" the Internal Revenue Service that may amount to a criminal conspiracy to harass President Nixon's political enemies.

Jaworski asked U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to reverse a decision made last December and provide the prosecutors with two pieces of evidence that could prove vital to their investigation.

Both involve a meeting Nixon had Sept. 15, 1972 with then key aides H. R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III. Jaworski said the tape recording of their conversation and Haldeman's notes are needed by two grand juries considering possible misuse of the IRS.

"Allegations concerning the White House's attempt to abuse and politicize the IRS have been and are the subjects of investigation by both....," Jaworski said in court papers.

Among other things, he said, the grand juries are investigating charges that:

—In September, 1972, the White House sent lists of "enemies" to the IRS "with the direction that they be audited or otherwise harassed."

—In August and September of 1972 the White House "unlawfully attempted" to have the IRS investigate Lawrence O'Brien, the former Democratic national chairman who at the time was Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign manager.

"Evidence assembled by this office, much of which has been presented before the grand juries, substantiates both of these allegations," Jaworski said. "This evidence also indicates the likelihood that on Sept. 15, 1972, the President did in fact have discussions with Mr. Dean and Mr. Haldeman concerning those matters."

He said the grand juries were investigating "possible violations" of several criminal statutes, including conspiracy and conspiracy to violate the civil rights of citizens.

A tape of the Sept. 15 Oval Office meeting was one of the first batch subpoenaed from Nixon by the prosecutors and surrendered after a court battle last November.

At that time, Nixon invoked a claim of executive privilege for portions of the tape and Haldeman's notes on grounds that they bore on "the President's conduct of his official duties and are unrelated to Watergate matters."

Sirica, after reviewing the evidence, upheld the privilege claims on Dec. 19.

Jaworski said subsequent developments indicated withheld material was relevant to Watergate investigations and asked Sirica to reverse his decision by ordering the evidence given to the grand juries.

Jaworski noted that both Haldeman and Dean testified at the Senate Watergate committee last summer that political use of the IRS had been discussed at the Sept. 15 meeting and that the White House corroborated their testimony informally to a committee lawyer.

Further, Jaworski said, a transcript of the meeting prepared by the House Judiciary Committee from a copy of the full tape included such a discussion whereas the limited materials the grand jury has do not. The transcript was published in the Washington Post.

Jaworski said the material may also "well bear on the possible motives" of some of the seven Watergate cover-up defendants, including Haldeman, who are scheduled for trial in September.

"Indeed, it is our view that a claim of executive privilege should be denied when the court encounters evidence of criminal activity on matters even only indirectly related to Watergate," Jaworski said.

Nixon lawyers to file reply to Jaworski's tape request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court announced today that President Nixon's lawyers will file by Thursday an answer to special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski's request for the high court to rule on his efforts to obtain more tapes and documents from the White House.

A Court spokesman said the justices had invited Nixon's lawyer, James St. Clair, to file "an expedited response" to Jaworski's direct appeal for an early determination by the high court, filed Friday.

Under the usual rules, St. Clair would have 30 days to file his answer.

Justice William H. Rehnquist did not participate in the action, the court spokesman said. He did not say why.

U.S. District Judge J. Sirica on May 20 ordered surrender of tapes and records of 64 conversations subpoenaed by Jaworski a month earlier as possible evidence in the Watergate coverup.

The President's lawyers took the case to the U.S. Court of Appeals. But Jaworski, in a surprise move last Friday, asked the Supreme Court to let the case bypass the appeals court. He said the matter was important enough to justify deviating from normal procedures.

The Watergate coverup trial, in which former top aides of the President are defendants, is scheduled to be Sept. 9, Jaworski told the high Court that failure to resolve the dispute over evidence could delay it until the spring of 1975, or approximately six months, unless the Supreme Court should convene in special term.

Kissinger makes last-minute decision to salvage peace

JERUSALEM (UPI) — In a last minute decision to salvage his peace mission between Israel and Syria, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger decided today to make one more trip to Damascus to work out a troop disengagement accord on the Golan Heights.

"I just thought that having carried every previous Israeli clarification and view to Damascus, I should do the final lap myself," Kissinger told newsmen on emerging from a two hour meeting with Prime Minister Golda Meir and her disengagement negotiators.

The decision came with dramatic suddenness and may have been made at the request of the Israelis to make one more effort.

"I owed it to everything that both sides had put into it to make the effort," Kissinger said before rushing back to his hotel. "I'll be going in an hour and I'll be back tonight."

Kissinger had originally planned to send Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco to Damascus with Israel's response to the latest Syrian proposals.

Mrs. Meir's cabinet met for four and a half hours to consider the latest proposals and said it would meet again tonight once it gets the clarifications it needs from the Syrians.

Kissinger and Sisco met with Mrs. Meir immediately after the cabinet session and prior to Sisco's departure for Damascus and a meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad for the final word from there.

Assad met today in Damascus with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko about the disengagement deal but Kissinger said Gromyko's visit to Damascus should have no effect on the negotiations. The Arab press carried big headlines today telling of Kissinger's "failure."

Continued hearing over 'ranchettes' concerns commission

Some County Planning Commissioners have exhibited concern and uneasiness about the announcement of the Board of Supervisors to continue a public hearing on the proposed Fillmore Condit "ranchette" development in Santa Ynez Valley on June 3.

The planning body earlier had continued its own hearing on the specific plans for the 726- lot development projected east of Los Olivos on the Rainbow Ranch to June 12.

The Board of Supervisors was on the verge of acting May 20 on a motion for approval of the developer's specific plan for the project showing smaller parcels than recommended by the Planning Department's advance planning division. Then it was learned that a legally noticed public hearing was required and the supervisors laid the matter over to June 3.

Planning commissioners learned from Planning Director Britt Johnson that they couldn't speed up appraisal of the developer's and staff specific plans to come up with a recommendation before the supervisors' session June 3.

Johnson said there wasn't time for a noticed hearing before then that would change the previous June 12 hearing date.

Condit's proposal for a 63-lot development was based on a combination of five acre and 10-acre agricultural lots.

The planning body earlier in the year was deadlocked at 4-4 and a motion to approve Condit's tentative map was defeated.

Later, the Board of Supervisors by 3-2 votes approved an environmental impact study with a finding that there were mitigating circumstances to adverse impacts that were seen, and the tentative map.

But in between was the finding by the county counsel that this was to be processed as the county's first land project under state code, with the requirement that a specific plan be approved before approval of the final map.

The planning staff's specific plan so aroused the ire of Board Chairman Charles F. Catterlin that he lashed into the planning department for assertedly taking a new planning direction in regard to Condit's ranch property

The planning staff had recommended a rollback in agricultural zoning to 100-acre parcels on the grounds that "individual small acreage parcels in this area, would with few exceptions, have limited agricultural value."

It continued by saying:

"Cattle grazing, such as presently occurs on the property under a leasing arrangement in conjunction with adjacent properties, is well suited to the natural resources of the area. To continue such a use in a manner whereby landowners might participate in the county's agricultural preserve program would be preferable to the alternative of small acreage ranches subsidizing cattle grazing endeavors."

Inflation hits refuse industry

By DICK PRAUL

Inflation has hit the refuse collection industry, with the result that both the county and its franchised haulers are likely to win approval of increased rates at the expense of householders and commercial establishments served.

The Board of Supervisors will be asked Tuesday by the Public Works Department to sanction increases for the haulers serving unincorporated county areas for the first time since 1968, said Assistant Public Works Director Paul E. Price.

At the same time, the supervisors face recommendations for increased county refuse station charges to haulers, and householders to enable the county to meet its current $744,662 yearly refuse division operating costs without resorting to the $77,337 a year tax support now required to balance the budget.

The adjustments recommended, Price said, are believed to be equitable to both the franchise owners and the county, as owner and operator of the solid waste disposal sites.

Price said his department can operate the refuse transfer station west of Santa Barbara serving the South Coast, and the Tajiguas landfill west of Goleta, either on a six or seven day week. But he said a six-day operation seemed preferable to keep operating costs and collection rates down.

New proposed county rate structures at its disposal sites would raise householder rates from $1 to $2 for up to two cubic yards of material; direct haulers from $1.25 to $2.50 per ton; demolition refuse from $6 to $7 per ton, and commercial haulers from $3.40 to $4.20 per ton.

Basic twice weekly service in Lompoc and Santa Maria valley areas would rise from $4.70 monthly to $5.31.

Price said it was hoped the new schedules could go into effect by July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

In other matters today, the supervisors are expected to adopt on final reading a new animal control and regulation ordinance raising dog licenses, effective next year, from $4 to $6 annually, with licenses for neutered dogs at half price.

Also the supervisors will hear a request from Buellton School District Improvement and Protective Assn. requesting a moratorium on all lot splits and building permits in and around the community of Ballard.

A building moratorium currently exists in Santa Ynez, as a result of health hazards caused by septic tanks. Voters are to ballot on a bond issue in the June 4 Primary election to finance a community public sewer system.

Russian obsession

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Gov. Marvin Mandel, talking by satellite from Shanghai, where he was visiting with four other governors, Thursday said the Chinese seem obsessed by the idea of masses of Russians along their border.

"The 'polar bear of the North' is not good and they talk about it," he told press secretary Frank Defilippo. "The feeling here is that they are the enemy. Relations between those two are at a very low level at this point."

The other governors are Dan Evans of Washington, Arch Moore of West Virginia, Robert Ray of Iowa, and Calvin Rampton of Utah.

Rulings favor nude law

Attorneys for county persons contesting legality of a new county ordinance banning nudity on virtually all county beach areas have now lost opening skirmishes on two fronts.

Santa Barbara Municipal Judge Arnold Gowans has denied a demurrer filed by American Civil Liberties Union attorneys questioning the legality of the ordinance adopted last December by the Board of Supervisors and enacted into law the following month.

Defendants are David A. Thomasco, 20, and James W. Johnston, 20, students at UC Santa Barbara.

Meanwhile, in Carpinteria justice court, Judge James Pattillo has continued to June 6 arraignment of eight men and women whose counsel earlier had encountered a legal setback when the Carpinteria judge had denied a similar demurrer.

Defense counsel for the eight include Gerald Franklin and Robert Cutting, of Santa Barbara, and Melville Nimmer, professor of law at University of California, Los Angeles.

The arrests of the eight were made on the Summerland beach in February.

The attorneys claim in both cases that the county ordinance is unconstitutional because it violates the First Amendment covering free expression, has been preempted by the state, and is so vague in prohibiting nudity "open to the public view" as to be meaningless.

New era dawns in France

PARIS (UPI) — A new era dawned in France today, led by the youthful, Kennedy-style politics of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and a firebrand premier named Jacques Chirac.

Giscard d'Estaing was inaugurated without traditional fanfare Monday as France's 20th president and promptly picked Chirac —nicknamed "the bulldozer" —to form a new cabinet.

Chirac, 41, who worked his way through Harvard by washing dishes, said he would submit a "rather restricted" cabinet today to Giscard d'Estaing for approval.

The new premier, a conservative interior minister in the outgoing government and a loyal Gaullist, became the second youngest premier in the nation's history.

European reaction to Chirac's appointment was swift. Common Market officials said the choice "stirs no enthusiasm." One official said the premier was "strongly detested" by his European colleagues.

Giscard d'Estaing accepted the resignation of outgoing Premier Pierre Messmer shortly after assuming power as president.

The new leader, whose candid style has been compared to the late President John F. Kennedy, promised to bring a youthful "new era" to France. At 48, he is the youngest chief of state of any major Western nation.

The conservative president won by a slim majority over Socialist Francois Mitterrand in a May 19 election to succeed President Georges Pompidou, who died of bone cancer last month.

Under France's 1958 constitution, the president formulates policy and the premier expedites the chief of state's programs.

Anti-fascist rally concludes in horror

BRESCIA, Italy (UPI) — A time bomb set to go off at the moment thousands of workers had met in the central piazza today blew an anti-Fascist rally into a horror of death and injury.

Police said at least six persons died and more than 40 were injured in the explosion, seven critically.

Dead and wounded lay in pools of blood on the rain-soaked cobblestones of the Piazza della Loggia where only minutes earlier they stood listening to an anti-Facist speech by a labor leader.

Thousands of workers, who had gone on a four hour strike to attend the rally, ran screaming from the piazza into side streets turning the center of this northern Italian town where Pope Paul VI grew up into chaos.

Italy's three top labor unions called a national four hour strike Wednesday and the government announced all schools in Italy would be closed to observe a day of mourning for the dead.

Politicians blamed the bombing on Fascists and the government of Premier Mariano Rumor faced a list of questions in parliament on how it planned to face "this challenge of terrorism" against the state.

Ford asks aid for vets

United Press International

Vice President Gerald Ford Monday laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and urged that fellow Americans go out of their way to help the Vietnam War veterans, "who have known few parades, few bands, few cheers."

He went on to say in his Memorial Day address at Arlington National Cemetery that those who fought in Vietnam need "honor and help not alone with government money and medical care ... but with genuine recognition in the community, with rewarding work and with the neighborly helping hand that has always been the hallmark of American character."

There were ceremonies to mark the day in towns across the nation, including Yountville, Calif., where 14 veterans of the Spanish-American War were awarded campaign medals by representatives from the Presidio Army Museum in San Francisco.

The oldest man honored was William Knapp, 103, who served with the 3rd Infantry, and the youngest was Roy Robinson, 90, a member of the 8th U.S. Cavalry. All 14 live in the local veterans' home.

Flowers were cast on the waters of Pearl Harbor, where the hull of the USS Arizona, sunk in the Japanese attack Dec. 7, 1941, holds the bodies of over 1,000 men. An estimated 1,500 persons attended services at the National Cemetery of the Pacific in Honolulu.

In Las Vegas, where it was 100 degrees outside, 400 residents gathered at Palm Memorial Park amid flowers and flags to hear Nevada State Supreme Court Judge John Mowbray cite Watergate and the Hearst kidnaping as symptoms of a diseased society. He concluded, however, that Americans could "weave a tapestry of unity more beautiful than we can imagine and mend out every flaw."

The city's air-conditioned casinos reported one of the most profitable weekends in history, with thousands of out-of-state visitors crowding the gambling tables. There were more than 100,000 visitors at nearby Lake Mead.

Attendance was light at the Memorial Day parade in New York on a cold and drizzly day, and there was hardly anybody on the beach at Coney Island, where the first long weekend of the vacation season normally draws hundreds of thousands.

Fulbright puts record on line

United Press International

In a primary election with national implications, Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman J. William Fulbright puts his 30-year record on the line today against the popular governor of his state. And maverick oldtimers Orval Faubus of Arkansas and Wayne Morse of Oregon are appealing to voters to nominate them for offices they once held.

In Kentucky, Republican Sen. Marlow W. Cook and Democratic Gov. Wendell H. Ford are heavy favorites to win senatorial primaries giving them the right to face each other in November.

Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers, 48, who has not attacked Fulbright's liberal record in foreign affairs —only his age — could stake claim to a place on the Democratic national ticket in 1976 with a victory today. The winner is expected to defeat GOP candidate John Harris Jones in the general election.

Neither the handsome Bumpers, whose image is that of a leader of the "New South," nor the 69-year-old Fulbright, an early opponent of the Vietnam war, differed much on issues.

Bumpers, by asking voters to "join me and help restore our faith in the Democratic process," apparently hoped discontent with incumbents in Washington would give him the victory. Fulbright, fighting to overcome early deficits in the polls, said he did not want the election to become a popularity contest.

"It's all right to like Dale Bumpers and vote for Bill Fulbright," read one slogan in Fulbright's campaign against the governor, who is the state's best votegetter.

Another of the Senate's antiwar leaders during the 1960s, Wayne Morse of Oregon, tries to recapture the seat he lost six years ago to Republican Robert Packwood, who is running unopposed for renomination.

Morse, 73, faced state senate president Jason Boe in the Democratic primary. Two years ago, Morse won the Democratic nomination but lost to incumbent Republican Mark Hatfield.

Morse's campaign, based on the need for integrity in government, harked back to the days when he was the maverick, dissenting voice of the Senate. He served there as a Republican, Independent and Democrat.

Wide open races were predicted in the two Oregon congressional districts where incumbents are retiring and in the race for the gubernatorial nomination where five candidates would like to replace incumbent Republican Tom McCall, barred by law from succeeding himself.

Arkansas had another spirited campaign in the battle between former six-term Gov. Orval Faubus and former Rep. David Pryor for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Faubus, who defied President Eisenhower's orders to integrate a Little Rock high school in 1957, resulting in the use of federal troops, has not made race a major issue this time, although he has campaigned against busing.

Pryor, a moderate, served in the House before losing a Senate primary two years ago to incumbent John L. McClellan.

A third candidate, Lt. Gov. Bob Riley, could get enough votes to force a runoff primary.

Soviet resources may not be shared

MOSCOW (UPI) — Oil Minister Valentin D. Shashin has cast doubts on whether foreign firms will be allowed to share in development of the Soviet Union's vast oil and gas resources.

"We have no agreements for participation in exploration with anybody anywhere, in respect either to oil or gas deposits, and I think there will not be any," Shashin told a group of American newsmen Monday.

"The reason is simply that we have enough means of our own," he said.

Shashin specifically ruled out major sales of oil to Japan but declined to discuss two proposed multibillion-dollar deals with American firms involving natural gas. He said gas projects were outside his field of competence.

Last year Occidental Petroleum Corp. reached a preliminary agreement with the Russians on a $10 billion 25-year deal for delivering natural gas from eastern Siberia to the U.S. West Coast.

Later, three Texas firms — Tenneco, Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. and Brown and Root —signed an agreement of intention to supply gas from western Siberia to the U.S. East Coast.

The projects already faced considerable obstacles. Both are so huge that they would require U.S. government financing, and that has been held up by unresolved doubts within the Nixon administration and by Congressional opposition to granting credits to the Soviet Union.

On the Japanese oil project, Shasin at first denied there ever had been negotiations with Japan, then made clear the deal is now dead.

The Japanese tentatively had planned to help finance a pipeline across Siberia and to take in exchange 25 million tons of oil annually from the west Siberian fields.

Nation's weather

United Press International

Thunderstorms spawned destructive winds and at least one tornado in the mid Missouri Valley today.

The National Weather Service reported winds gusting to 60 miles per hour near Rapid City, S.D., and Brewster, Neb. Furious winds near Burwell, Neb., collapsed farm buildings and killed 10 sows.

A tornado was sighted in Fullerton, Neb., and inch-wide hailstones pounded the nearby town of Clarks. More than two inches of rain drenched the area between North Platte and McCook, Neb., and Pierre, S.D., got more than an inch.

Thundershowers also hit the northern Rockies, the upper Mississippi Valley, the Florida Keys and the mid Atlantic coast. A few showers were reported in the northern Atlantic coastal states.

Thousands attend funeral of 'Duke'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ella Fitzgerald, her eyes still red from crying, sang it for everyone at Duke Ellington's funeral: "In my solitude, you haunt me..."

The musician and composer died Friday of cancer, and his funeral reflected the love he offered the world in his music.

The estimated 10,000 fans and friends jamming the Episcopalian Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine on Manhattan's Upper West Side and overflowing into the street were a cross-section of society —rich and poor, dressed elegantly or in jeans.

They came to pay homage to a man who gave the world 50 years of musical splendor, and who six years ago offered his own musical prayers in the huge gothic cathedral in a "sacred song" concert.

As crowds gathered at the cathedral Tuesday, the Duke was making his last trip, in a funeral cortege up Broadway and across 125th Street — Harlem's main stem —where more than 40 years ago he hit the big time at the Cotton Club.

The Duke's haunting and sophisticated tunes dominated the funeral.

Besides Miss Fitzgerald, jazz stars paying tribute to the Duke were Joe Williams, Earl "Fatha" Hines, Billy Taylor, Jo Jones, Lyle Atkinson and Mary Lou Williams.

The service was a combination of high Episcopalian lessons and prayers and musical tributes.

The Duke's long time friend and biographer, Stanley Dance, eulogized Duke Ellington as "a citizen of the world."

"Duke, you made good musicians sound great and great musicians sound even greater," Dance said. "Some call you a genius but it was really a gift extended from God."

At the end, his voice breaking, he said: "The Duke had a lasting faith in this country. His memories will live in the years to come. He served this country well, and he will go on serving it in the years to come."

Singer Pearl Bailey represented President Nixon with special presidential assistant Stanley Scott. Before the service Miss Bailey, married to former Ellington drummer Louis Bellson, paid her own personal tribute to the Duke.

"Some men were one instrument —the Duke was a sound. God gave him the most filling message: 'Let your light shine so men can see.'"

Joe Williams, who sang with the Duke for many years, offered the joyfully introspective Ellington song "My Mother, My Father —and Love."

Pianist Fatha Hines played a medley of Ellington tunes that are woven into memories — "Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady," "I Got It Bad and That Ain't Good," "Satin Doll."

But it was Ella Fitzgerald who filled the cavernous cathedral with Ellington's "Solitude." Then she moved into the traditional hymn, "Just a Closer Walk With Thee," backed by Joe Jones on drums, Lyle Atkinson on bass and Billy Taylor on piano.

Her voice, piped to the street, drifted through the chilly spring air to the hundreds unable to get inside the cathedral.

The Duke always ended his concerts with the message: "I love you madly."

And the Rev. Norman O'Connor, known in New York City as the Jazz Priest, ended his prayer with, "Duke, we thank you. You loved us madly —we will love you madly today, tomorrow and forever."

New hope exists for lost biker

MEXICALI, Mexico (UPI) — There was new hope today that a California pharmacist, lost 10 days ago in the Baja California desert, was still alive, surviving on luck and his skill as an outdoorsman.

Fred Mundy, 47, took a wrong turn while competing in a motorcycle race in the Mexican desert about 80 miles south of the border on May 18 and has not been seen since. Searchers found his motorcycle where it had run out of gasoline, with "SOS" scrawled in the sand beside it.

"We're within 24 hours behind him and things suddenly look good," San Diego County Sheriff's Lt. Dusty Rhodes said Monday.

American searchers, aided by Mexican cowboys on horseback, found tracks Monday believed to have been made by the missing man less than 24 hours before. The tracks were found near fresh water. But searchers were concerned that Mundy still had not gotten his bearings, because he headed off on a course parallel to the nearest highway, 40 miles away, instead of walking toward it.

Dear Abby

Opinions vary on the question of bra size

DEAR ABBY: When Dad asked his 17-year-old daughter what size bra she wore, she told him it was none of his business. Her mother agreed with her, and you sided with both of them. Dad worked for 17 years to provide the food that went into the tissue which created his daughter's breasts, but it's none of his business what size they are. CRAZY!

I deem it impudent for the daughter and her mother to even question Dad's right to this information. As long as he's supporting her, every part of her development is his business.

Boys get too big for their britches, and girls get too big for their brassieres when they can get away with telling Dad that something is none of his business.

I'll bet you will hear from plenty of readers on this.

FRANK IN OREGON

DEAR FRANK: You bet right. And the mail is running 20 to one against me!

Let's set the record straight, Frank. When Dad asked his budding daughter what size bra she wore, nobody told Dad it was "none of his business."

Daughter became embarrassed and declined to answer. Mother sided with Daughter saying she didn't think it was anything Dad had to know, and I took the distaff side.

Read on for a letter from a like-minded physician who said it better than I:

DEAR ABBY: May I say that the father who felt he had a "right" to know his teen-aged daughter's bra size was out of line?

My daughters are 18 and 20, and I have no idea what size bras they wear, and I couldn't care less.

I think that father should have been more concerned with his daughter's feelings than the size of her bra.

OLD-FASHIONED FATHER

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from the woman who recommends sending back "junk mail" so the company must pay the return postage and will remove her name from their mailing list.

I hope you don't agree with this policy, Abby. My husband and I started a small business, producing a high quality item, well worth its price. We can't afford national advertising, so we use direct mail advertising to inform people of our product and give them a chance to examine it before they buy.

On the few occasions when people have returned our envelopes stuffed with extra paper, I am more saddened than angry. It shows so much hostility and aggression. If the recipient isn't interested in the product, why not just throw the mail away?

I hope you feel that this is important enough for your column. It means a great deal to the small business people who rely on direct mail for their sales. Thank you.

STRUGGLING

DEAR STRUGGLING: And thanks for giving me the opportunity to open a few million eyes.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a cashier at a well-known chain grocery store, and my problem is the way people treat me. They act like it's my fault that prices are so high. They yell at me when I ring up items, and ask me how come canned corn went up four cents in one week. When they pay their money, they say: "Look at that! I used to be able to get three bags of groceries with a $20 bill!"

They don't realize that I only work there, and I have to buy groceries just like they do.

And while I'm griping, I may as well mention those customers who wait till their order is totaled, and then ask to get a check cashed while customers are waiting in line behind them. Meanwhile the cashier gets the dirty looks from the other customers.

I used to love my work, but no longer! Please print this. I got it off my chest, and believe it or not, I feel better.

"SUNNY"

DEAR SUNNY: Consider it printed. Now ... smile!

Docents serve at the mission

Guided tours are offered visitors

By STAN TULLEDO
Feature Editor

How do the docents like living at La Purisima Mission? Well, they don't live there. They live in Lompoc like most everyone else.

What do the docents do when they work here? Just what you see them doing now — giving guided tours of the old mission.

Did the docents live at the mission when it was operating back in the olden days? Now, now, son, they don't look that old do they?

These questions the four docents must contend with every week. However, questions and answers are what being a docent is all about if you ask Mrs. Joanna Hardin, Mrs. Lucille Christie, Mrs. Babe Santos or Mrs. Kay Dupont.

The hundreds of elementary school children who visit the mission each year ask questions about the docents as well as La Purisima and their guides provide the answers. The docents do a lot of question asking too while conducting tours:

Who knows how thick these walls are?

Why do many rooms have a small hole in the wall?

Why do you think the padres built a buttress on only one end of the residence building?

La Purisima Mission is sort of a textbook that young students can step into. The four docents - in long dresses and bonnets of the mission period (1787-1812) - are their personal guides.

According to Mrs. Hardin, head docent, "To the kids this is a great outing, but if you can teach them something too, then it's great."

That is the docent's objective, to show people around while imparting some intriguing information — how and why the padres built the mission, why they included its curious features, how the padres, soldiers, and Indians all lived together in the mission.

The docents are graduates of a ten week course conducted at the mission by Richard C. Edwards, ranger at La Purisima Mission, and Dalton Merkel, interpretative director of district 5 of the state parks and recreation, on every facet of mission life in early California. One week, for example, covers a brief history of California, the mission period, and the Chumash Indian culture. All sessions are supplemented with handout material and reading assignments.

Besides elementary school children, the docents guide classes of high school and college students. The come from as far south as San Diego and as far north as Berkeley.

Last month, the docents conducted 19 tours, ushered two weddings and assisted the Easter sunrise service.

If all this sounds a bit much for four docents it is. And that is why Prelada De Los Tesoros, as the docents have organized and named their small group, are now campaigning for needed men and women to volunteer. A ten week course will be starting soon and interested persons may call Mrs. Hardin at the mission (3-3713).

The docent program began there in the summer of 1973. Previously the mission's two rangers conducted tours with huge groups. Now, with four docents, groups can be broken down into small units and afforded more personal tours. Only the four ladies are working four and five times a week.

Mrs. Hardin figures, "With 20 docents, you might work one day a week. With four of us we've been keeping busy. And now that the word is out that there are docents at the mission, the number of tours has increased."

Their compensation? The smiling faces of children and the letters and pictures they send back to the mission, thanking the docents for such a fun outing and interesting information.

Camp Fire Girls conduct grand council fire event

Lompoc Council of Camp Fire Girls held their major program event of the year last week, the 27th annual grand council fire. Held at Lompoc High School cafetorium, it attracted more than 400 members, parents and friends.

Entitled "The Long and Winding Road," the event was planned by the high school Horizon Club members under direction of Merlene (Mrs. Everett) Mowery. Skits depicted girls reminiscing about their years in Camp Fire. These were written by Kim Herber and key roles were played by Cristi Gibbs, Joyce Etheridge, Susan Preece and Kim, with other Horizon Club members. Susan Duden served as "guardian of the fire."

Bringing special interest to the stage were 19 posters showing each torch bearer patch, these made by members of Janet (Mrs. David) Herber's Horizon Club.

Contributing to the program with their interpretation of "Dona Nobis Pacem" was the junior high Discovery Club choir led by Miss Barbara Wilson.

Each Discovery and Horizon Club member who earned the rank of torch bearer during the year was paid recognition. Attainment of this rank is considered to be one of the highest achievements in Camp Fire. This year there were 84 earned in such subjects as auto mechanics, cookery, outdoor living, games and sports, needlework, interior decorating, sewing and veterinary medicine.

A new addition to the council fire was the colorful procession of fourth through sixth grade Adventure groups, each carrying a bright banner made by themselves. These girls were also given special recognition for their achievements. They recited the trail seeker, woodgatherer and fire maker desires and and sang two songs.

Completing five years of service to the Camp Fire Council, the Mmes. John Hamon, Lawrence Vandborg, John Novack, Bruce Hamlin and Donald Lisle were given their five year pins by Donna (Mrs. Bradley) Wood, executive director.

Miss Wilson was presented with engraved charms, one for each Camp Fire function at which she helped with music in the past two years. Horizon Club members presented Mrs. Mowery with a corsage in appreciation "for her untiring efforts in organizing and directing the highly-successful Council Fire."

Holiday frustration

Frustration and mileage over 1,000 was the answer to a local couple's search for an overnight camping spot over the holiday weekend. Starting on Friday afternoon Lorie and Jerry Wertman drove north, stopping at Nacimiento, San Antonio and Margarita. Finding no open spot, they went on all the way to Salinas, then gave up and returned to Lompoc. Saturday was another try with a trip south, past Santa Paula and Piru Lake, avoiding such beach areas they knew called for reservations.

Home again, the coupled settled for a Monday at Zaca Lake.

Quota officers plan weekend convention

Planning to attend a Quota Club presidents convention May 31 - June 2 at Paso Robles are Marion (Mrs. John) Gugenheim, president; Pat Smith, recording secretary and Mae (Mrs. Charles) Letson, corresponding secretary.

Iris Society will plan rhizome sale

Officers and directors of the Robert R. Young Iris Society will meet Wednesday night in the home of Vaughn Proctor, society president, to develop plans for a rhizome sale and garden trek on the weekend of July 20-21.

The rhizome sale is in response to public demand expressed in April at an iris show that attracted hundreds to Lompoc Library. Rhizomes will be offered at small prices to raise money for an expanded show in 1975.

A proposal will also be made Wednesday to file a request with the American Iris Society for the right to host the 1976 spring trek of region 15 of the AIS that includes all of Southern California and part of Arizona.

Patty may be in photo

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The FBI and police are examining Polaroid pictures which may show that Patricia Hearst changed her appearance significantly, cutting her hair short and dying it bright blonde.

A police spokesman confirmed Monday that investigators have a partially burned picture that may show Miss Hearst, carrying a gun, in a group photo with members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, posed before their seven-headed cobra flag.

The photo is similar to one published in this week's Newsweek magazine, but is not the same photo, a police spokesman said. Both pictures were found by amateur souvenir-hunters poking in the ashes of the house where six SLA members died May 17.

As in the Newsweek photo, police said, the woman believed to be Miss Hearst "was definitely blonde," her hair a much brighter shade than is seen on the photos of Miss Hearst used on the thousands of FBI "wanted" posters distributed throughout California.

"She appeared to have her hair cut just below her ears, shorter, than in the earlier photographs that have been released," said police Cmdr. Peter Hagan.

That would confirm some reports by persons who claim to have seen Miss Hearst in recent weeks.

Identification was made difficult because the photos were of poor quality to begin with and have been singed and smudged.

Miss Hearst's parents have seen the Newsweek photo, police said. Publisher Randolph Hearst said "it could be" his daughter.

Super-sophisticated launch set today

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — A super-sophisticated communications system which cost $23 million to build will be launched into orbit today aboard NASA's Advanced Technology Satellite-F.

"It will be a complete broadcasting station in space," said Glenn G. Van Tilburg, program manager at Philco-Ford Corp.'s Western Development Laboratories Division in Palo Alto.

The communications system, built under a subcontract from Fairchild Industries, consists of "the most complex transponder ever developed for use on a satellite," Van Tilburg said.

The transponder —a transmitting-receiving device —was designed by Tilburg's technicians to operate over a wide range of frequencies needed for advanced experiments.

Major experiments to be performed by the space agency's satellite include:

—Broadcasting television programs on subjects such as better farming techniques and basic health care to small, inexpensive receivers in remote villages in India.

—Beaming educational television shows to remote areas of the Rocky Mountains, Alaska and Appalachia.

— Relaying weather data gathered by Nimbus spacecraft back to earth.

'Super Emmy' awards to be given tonight

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television performers aren't wondering who will win Emmys at the Television Academy's nationally televised award ceremony tonight. They already know. The question is: Who wins the first "super emmys"?

A good bet for most honored show of the evening is "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," a touching special depicting the life of a fictional black woman from the days of slavery to the civil rights movement.

The program has already won seven "Emmys, first round" including the statuette for best actress in a drama for its star, Cicely Tyson, making her eligible for one of the "super emmys."

This is the first year the academy has resorted to two-level awards, an experiment intended to head off the frequent complaints in the past that there were just too many awards (215 last year) in too many confusing and overlapping categories. Viewers and critics complained that the televised presentation ceremonies lacked dramatic impact compared to the Oscar ceremony for movie performances.

But many of the performers protested against efforts to drastically cut down the number of awards, arguing that while it may be fair to compare one movie with another, the same does not hold true for television. Judging a one-shot appearance in a comparatively big budget dramatic special against week-in, week-out performances by a comedy series star is comparing apples and oranges, the argument goes.

Only Monday, SOS, a group representing supporting players, announced it was dropping its lawsuit against the Academy, including a court action to get an injunction today cancelling the telecast. The group wants more recognition for "the hundreds of supporting actors and actresses who made one-time appearances in a series," feeling it is unfair to judge them against the series stars. A spokesman said there was not enough time to settle the matter, and the Academy had hinted it would look into the problem.

23 drown in State

JOHNSONDALE, Calif. (UPI) — At least 23 persons drowned in California during the long Memorial Day weekend, nine of them in a 25-mile stretch of the treacherous Kern River near Johnsondale.

Tulare County authorities estimated that 25,000 persons, including "hordes of teen-agers" from Southern California, flocked to the Johnsondale area to escape 100-degree heat blanketing much of the state.

One officer said some teen-agers may have been drinking and the intense heat caused many to ignore warning signs and plunge into the swirling river, posted as extremely dangerous.

The bodies of six teen-agers were recovered and three boys were missing and presumed drowned.

Fourteen persons were reported drowned elsewhere in the state, including a young mother and her infant son who disappeared when their rubber raft was sucked into a siphon pipe on the All American Canal near the northern end of the Salton Sea.

No face-to-face debate for candidates

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The three leading candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination will appear on the same television program but not in a face-to-face debate.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti blame secretary of state Edmund G. Brown Jr., saying he refuses to debate them head on, fearing he will lose his lead in the polls.

The Brown camp said Moretti and Alioto cannot be trusted to hold a rational debate on the issues, and would be likely to turn a face-to-face debate into an insult shouting match.

Representatives of the three candidates met Sunday at KNBC-TV, which will carry a live, hour-long, broadcast featuring all three next Saturday, three days before the primary election.

Each candidate will appear for 20 minutes, and be questioned by a panel of three newsmen, with Alioto appearing first, Moretti second and Brown third.

Another candidate, Claremont attorney Herb Hafif, has appealed to the Federal Communications commission in a move to block the program, arguing that since only three candidates have been invited to take part, the station is violating the equal time regulations.

In the past however, broadcast newsmen have been able to concentrate on the major candidates in a news format, leaving out those with no strong standing in the polls, without running afoul of the equal time provision.

Both Moretti and Alioto said that Brown was afraid to face them in a debate situation.

"We assume it was an acknowledgement that when he (Brown) met with Moretti in Fresno and Sacramento that he lost in those situations, so he doesn't want to do it in Los Angeles on KNBC," said Moretti campaign manager John FitzRandolph.

Last week, Moretti and Brown faced each other in a hurriedly arranged appearance on the campus of Cal State Fresno, and in an impromptu debate before reporters in Sacramento, which turned into a heated and disorderly wrangle.

Burbank hurler poses problem for Braves

By SCOTT OSTLER

Exactly 95 teams started out this baseball season with, theoretically, a chance to win the CIF 3-A championship.

To make a long story short, there are now four teams which still have a chance to win it all. Two of them — Lompoc and Burbank, meet tomorrow at Lompoc High at 3 p.m. The other two, El Segundo and Nogales, play down south.

And the winners of those two ballgames meet June 4 at Angels Stadium.

There are some solid reasons why these four teams wound up in the semifinals while the other 91 have packed away their uniforms for the winter.

Take the Braves, for instance. They are blessed with not one, but three pitchers capable of getting people out with consistency. They also have a couple of .400 hitters, plus some other guys who can hit the ball.

They are a team without any serious defensive flaws, and with a coach who has beaten the odds to get his teams as far as the semifinals twice before in the past five years.

In other words, the Braves are a solid team, unspectacular but highly efficient.

The Burbank Bulldogs are much the same. Adequate defense, hitters ranging from excellent to poor, well-coached.

And they have Ralph Botting.

Ralph Botting is a lefthanded pitcher who stands 6-0, weighs 175 pounds, rocks back and throws smoke.

According to all available sources, Botting hurls a baseball as fast as anyone in the CIF, maybe faster.

The general concensus is that, without Botting, the Bulldogs are just another good team.

"We hear," says Lompoc coach Dan Bodary, "that he is so dominating and so tough that he keeps them in the ballgame, that the team thrives behind him, and that he throws harder than anyone in CIF, without doubt."

Dick Wilson, whose Conqs faced Botting for four innings last Friday and hated every pitch, says Ralph "throws harder than anyone we've seen this year. If his curve is working, he could be one of the best in the past few years."

"We're just going to have to move the ball against him," says Bodary. "We'll have to hit it someplace, keep from striking out."

In three years of varsity pitching, Botting is 35-7, including playoffs. He's 12-1 this year and 3-0 in the playoffs. His only loss was in relief during a pre-season game. He was 8-0 in league competition.

His stats this year, playoffs, excluded: 91 1-3 innings, 116 strikeouts, 45 walks, 29 hits, 1.02 ERA. He pitched two no-hitters and two one-hitters.

In the playoffs so far he's pitched 17 innings and allowed zero runs.

One other thing. Botting was named Foothill League co-MVP, along with Jack Uhey of Hart.

Uhey lasted two innings against Lompoc in the opening round of the playoffs.

The Bulldogs will also face a decent lefty pitcher — Johnny Rodriguez. John bends curves skillfully around the plate and reacts to pressure with poise. His stats are 61 2-3 innings, 28 hits, 33 walks, 75 strikeouts, 8 earned runs, 5-3 record.

Dick Wilson predicts: "If Johnny throws his normal game, they (Bulldogs) won't hit the ball hard off him."

Both teams have a pair of outstanding hitters. For Lompoc it's Paul Borchard and Rick Fridrich. For Burbank, it's Mike Donathan and a guy named Ralph Botting.

Defensively, according to scouts, the Bulldogs are strong at second base, weak behind the plate, and about average elsewhere. The Braves have no real weakness, and are exceptional at catcher.

76ers draft Barnes; LA gets Winters

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers grabbed Marvin Barnes of Providence in the opening round of the National Basketball Association collegiate draft today after learning North Carolina State's David Thompson was not eligible.

Barnes was the second player selected but the first hardly was a surprise, Portland officially naming 6-11 center Bill Walton of UCLA as the No. 1 pick.

Walton, the three-time college player of the year, already has signed a five-year contract with Portland —which won the top choice earlier in a coin toss with Philadelphia —estimated between $2 and $3 million.

The 76ers, after first asking for clarification on the status of Thompson, chose Barnes, a 6-8 center.

Simon Gourdine, vice-president of administration for the NBA, explained to the 76ers that Thompson, a junior, was not eligible for the draft as an under-classman and had not applied for hardship status.

Seattle, which had traded veteran guard Dick Snyder Monday for Cleveland's first round pick today, used that selection to take 7-4 center Tom Burleson of NCAA champion North Carolina State.

John Shumate of Notre Dame then became the fourth consecutive center to be chosen as he was grabbed by the Phoenix Suns.

Two forwards went next, 6-8 Bobby Jones of North Carolina to the Houston Rockets and 6-7 Scott Wedman of Colorado to Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

Tom Henderson of Hawaii, a member of the last U.S. Olympic team, was the first guard to be chosen as he was picked by the Atlanta Hawks, and 6-8 forward Campy Russell of Michigan then became the first hardship draftee, selected by Cleveland.

The Buffalo Braves, picking ninth, chose 6-1 forward Tom McMillen of Maryland, who has a Rhodes scholarship awaiting him, and Atlanta used the first round choice of New Orleans, obtained in the Pete Maravich deal, to take 6-7 center Mike Sojourner of Utah.

Keith Wilkes, a 6-6 forward from UCLA, was chosen by Golden State. Six-four guard Brian Winters of South Carolina was chosen by Los Angeles and 6-9 center Len Elmore of Maryland was taken by the Washington Bullets.

Chicago, using a choice obtained less than an hour earlier from the New York Knicks in a trade for Howard Porter, selected 6-9 forward Maurice Lucas of Marquette, and after Detroit chose 6-5 forward Al Eberhard of Missouri, the Bulls used their own choice to take Cliff Poindexter, a 6-8 forward from Long Beach State.

To complete the first round, the NBA champion Boston Celtics chose 6-5 forward Glen McDonald of Long Beach State and Milwaukee selected 6-3 guard Gary Brokaw of Notre Dame.

Bradshaw hears big WFL offer; waits for more

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw said Monday he expects a contract offer from the World Football League which the Steelers "will never be able to match."

Bradshaw said he has already turned down an offer from the WFL's New York Stars which he called "tremendous." However, he said even a substantially larger money offer from the Stars may not prompt him to jump leagues.

Bradshaw said Stars' Coach Babe Parilli, the Steelers' quarterback coach the past two seasons, contacted him after Pittsburgh backup quarterback Terry Hanratty turned down a New York contract.

"I flew to New York with my lawyer, Les Zittrain, to meet Parilli and club officials," Bradshaw said. "After two hours we said no and flew back here. We set a higher price and expect it to be forthcoming."

He said the asked-for three year pact would be "quite a bit more, which Dan Rooney (Steeler vice president) will never be able to match."

Bradshaw, who was not among NFL stars selected in the WFL's special player draft, said he has kept Rooney informed of his negotiations with the Stars.

Indy payoff

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Johnny Rutherford was $98,012 richer today because he remembered the late Peter Revson's favorite word — "persevere."

Rutherford left the garage 10 times at Indianapolis in previous years and always returned to the area before the 500-mile race was over. Last Sunday, the 36-year-old Texan made it all the way as 33 drivers shared a record purse of $1,015,686.

Jackson leads hot bat battle

Carew's .399 only 2nd best

United Press International

It could only happen to Rod Carew.

What other player could be hitting .399 in the American League on Memorial Day—and still be second in the batting race?

Normally, .399 on Memorial Day is good enough to lead the American League by 40 points or so.

But it's happening again to Rod Carew, who's made a career of being overshadowed and may be the most underrated player in baseball.

Carew has several strikes against him when it comes to getting recognition. He's on a losing team that doesn't draw well and he plays in Minnesota —far from the media centers. Last year, he led the majors with a .350 average and everybody yawned. Pete Rose hit .338 to lead the National League and won the MVP award.

That's why it's not surprising that when Carew's average dropped to .399 Monday, he fell to second behind Reggie Jackson, who's now at the .404 mark. Jackson collected three singles in Oakland's 12-2 rout of Detroit Monday night after Carew went 0-for-4 in Minnesota's 3-2 loss to Boston as his average dipped under .400.

Jackson is on the threshold of one of the great seasons in American League history—akin to Mickey Mantle's triple crown season in 1956 and Carl Yastrzemski's triple crown year of 1967.

Jackson is noted as a power hitter but this year he's also taking a shot at the batting title. He leads the league in homers with 13 and he trails only Jeff Burroughs in RBIs, 48-39.

Jackson won his first MVP award last year and could be a shoo-in for a second straight if he keeps going at this pace. He's doing all this even though he was hobbled by a pulled leg muscle earlier this month.

Oakland pounded out 13 hits to batter Detroit and hand Vida Blue, who went seven innings, the victory. Joe Coleman took the loss. Oakland leads the AL West by 1 ½ games.

Royals 9, Orioles 1

Kansas City didn't make it very interesting for the national television audience. The Royals took an 8-1 lead after five innings and coasted in. Fran Healy's two-run homer in the second inning off loser Jim Palmer started the outburst. Bruce Dal Canton pitched a five-hitter for the victory while Palmer, last year's Cy Young award winner, dipped to 2-6 with his sixth straight loss.

Red Sox 3, Twins 2

Bernie Carbo, whose homer in the fourth drove in two earlier runs, singled home the deciding run in the 10th inning to give Boston the win. Two walks preceded Carbo's game-winning hit off reliever Tom Burgmeier. Luis Tiant went all the way and allowed 10 hits to even his record at 5-5.

Rangers 6, Indians 0

Jim Bibby pitched a three-hitter for his first victory since April 30 to give Texas the victory over Cleveland. Jeff Burroughs hit a two-run double to boost his league-leading RBI total to 48. Jim Perry took the loss as his record dropped to 3-4.

White Sox 5, Yanks 3

Pat Kelly's two-run single capped a three-run fourth inning that carried Chicago past New York. The White Sox collected 13 hits while handing Doc Medich his fourth loss in 10 decisions. Skip Pitlock went 6 2-3 innings to get his first win with relief help from Terry Forster.

Brewers 2, Angels 0

Don Money slammed a two-run homer in the fifth inning and rookie left-hander Kevin Kobel recorded his first major league shutout to pace the Brewers past the Angels and Nolan Ryan. Kobel, 20, who had a 3-15 record at San Antonio in the Texas League in 1972, limited the Angels to six-hits for his third victory in five decisions. Ryan, now 6-5, gave up only seven hits and struck out eight.

Brett's bid for perfecto lost in 9th

United Press International

Nine years have passed without a perfect game in the National League.

So when Pittsburgh's Ken Brett had a chance to do it on Monday, what happened? His teammates gave him "a cold shoulder".

"I realized I had a perfect game from the fifth inning on," said The 26-year-old southpaw, who came from Philadelphia for infielder Dave Cash during the off season. "When I came to the bench, all the guys were kidding around with each other but they didn't pay any attention to me."

"It's an unwritten law," said Manager Danny Murtaugh, "to ignore a pitcher when he comes to the bench and he's pitching a no-hitter. He was superlative."

Brett's no-hitter lasted eight innings. He had retired 24 consecutive batters before Fred Kendall punched a leadoff single to left in the ninth. Brett, now 5-3, finished with a two hitter and the Pirates a 6-0 shutout over the Padres in the first game of a Memorial Day doubleheader. They also won the second game 8-7.

"I'd been throwing sliders all afternoon," Brett admitted, "but I guess this one just didn't go over. I used to pitch against Fred in high school in Southern California and he used to occasionally hit me. We were about 15 at that time. It was a good hit, no doubt about it."

After Kendall singled, Brett retired the next two batters before Derrel Thomas doubled. Enzo Hernandez bounced to Brett unassisted for the final out. The Pirates, playing with only one regular, Frank Taveras at short, banged out six hits and highlighted the eighth inning with a four-run rally.

A two-run ninth inning home run by Richie Hebner won the nightcap for Pittsburgh as Brett continued his splendid day. He hit a two-run pinch-hit triple that tied the score 3-3 during a five-run seventh.

Braves 9, Phils 1

Three RBIs by Dave Johnson and Dusty Baker's homer and double sparked a 13-hit attack in the Braves' victory over the Phils. Phil Niekro, upping his record to 6-3, tossed a five-hitter and had a shutout going until the seventh when Mike Schmidt belted his eighth homer.

Cardinals 7, Dodgers 2

Home runs by Joe Torre, Reggie Smith and Ted Simmons and five double plays by St. Louis sent Dodger ace Andy Messersmith to his first loss. Southpaw John Curtis, who started for the Cards, yielded two hits over seven innings then was yanked for reliever Orlando Pena in the eighth before nailing down his third victory in eight decisions.

Cubs 12, Giants 4

Pitcher Ken Frailing's three hits and three RBIs led an 18-hit parade and Andre Thornton added a three-run homer as Chicago routed the Giants. Frailing, who went the distance to gain his third win in seven decisions, allowed the Giants 15 hits. The Cubs broke the game open in the sixth with 10 hits and five runs.

Reds 4, Mets 2

Fred Norman's four-hit pitching helped the Reds beat the Mets. The Reds shoved Tom Seaver around for their runs in the first two innings, leaving the 1973 Cy Young Winner with a sagging 2-5 record for the year.

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Clifton Pondexter, last season's freshman sensation of the Long Beach State basketball team, announced Monday he is foregoing further college competition and turning professional.

What happened?

Palmer and Seaver: shellshocked stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — Why does a pitcher whose trademark is consistency suddenly become inconsistent?

That's a question that baseball men in both leagues are asking these days.

That's because one of the most puzzling aspects of the 1974 season has been the disappointing showing of the two 1973 Cy Young award winners—Tom Seaver of the New York Mets and Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles.

Seaver's failure has been especially puzzling because there seems to be nothing physically wrong with him—and yet he's been quite ineffective. By contrast, Palmer has a sore arm but still has lost some tough ones—2-1, 2-0 and 3-1.

The last five years, they've been two of the most impressive pitchers in baseball. Seaver posted records of 25-7, 18-12, 20-10, 21-12 and 19-10 from 1969 through 1973. Palmer, meanwhile, has been 16-4, 20-10, 20-9, 21-10 and 22-9 over the same span. That's 103-51 for Seaver and 99-42 for Palmer.

But this year with the season now about one-fourth over, they've each won just two games. If they continue on their present pace, they'll both have trouble winning 10 games, much less 20.

Both started Monday night and neither finished. Palmer departed after 2 2-3 innings, allowing five runs and seven hits in a 9-1 loss to Kansas City. Seaver left after six innings, giving up four runs and six hits in a 4-2 loss to Cincinnati.

The two men who once matched each other in positive statistics now have negative stats that are very close.

Each pitcher has started 11 times this year. Seaver is 2-5 and Palmer is 2-6.

Of course, some observers say it's just the law of averages. Every good pitcher has a mediocre season every so often.

Palmer thinks the sore right arm that has prevented him from throwing the slider is the reason for his downfall. It may date back to April 21 when he pitched 12 innings in chilly weather in a 13-inning game against New York—although he says he strained it taking a swing in batting practice two weeks ago.

"It is a little sore. I strained something in it. There's damage in the soft tissue," Palmer said Monday night. He started going to the doctor after a week ago. He was told if it hurt longer than 24 hours after he pitched, there was something wrong. So far, it hasn't hurt longer than 24 hours. He expects to get a cortisone shot when the team returns home.

"The big thing is I can't throw sliders. When I try to pop the ball, it hurts. It's not an acute pain, it's kind of a nagging pain," Palmer said.

Seaver says there's nothing wrong with his arm. "It's nothing physical," he says.

What makes Seaver's performance so mystifying is that he's pitched shutouts for his two victories—and held the Dodgers to one run in 12 innings in a game Harry Parker lost in the 13th.

But the rest of the time he's been shelled. For example, he blanked Montreal on May 17th. In his two starts since then, he hasn't gotten past the sixth inning.

"I've always tried to be consistent but this year I haven't been able to put several good games together," he said.

Yogi Berra, the Met manager who never seems to worry, may have put it in the proper perspective.

"There isn't a manager in the league who wouldn't take Seaver," Berra says.

That's true about Palmer, too. But nobody would have guessed that they'd both have just two wins on Memorial Day.

Valley girls track results

Kerri Marshall of the Lompoc Valley Track Club placed 7th in a field of fast half-milers at yesterday's LaJolla Invitational AAU Classic in San Diego. Competing in the 14-15-year-old 880, Marshall clocked 2:23.1.

Karin Mahoney ran an 11.8 100 to take 6th in the 14-15 division, and also placed in the 220 with a 26.5.

In the 12-13 880, Maggie Knickrehm took 8th in 2:27.2.

All three qualified for the California AAU Championships at UCLA June 9. They'll compete next weekend at the Southern Cal AAU Championships.

The highlight of yesterday's meet was Janice Wiser's (LaJolla) upset of Mary Decker in the 440. Wiser ran 53.6, Decker 54.1.

Boston's Bep gets the boot

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Bruins, losers to the Philadelphia Flyers in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals, are in the market for a new coach. Bep Guidolin, coach for the past year and a half, lost out in his bid for job security Monday when Managing Director Harry Sinden rejected Guidolin's demand for a five-year contract.

Guidolin followed through on his threat to resign if he did not get his long-term pact, made last week following a meeting with Sinden. The two talked again on the telephone Monday just prior to the announcement of Guidolin's resignation.

Easley wins easily

Sonny Easley of Van Nuys took an easy victory last night in the Memorial 100 at Ascot Raceway. Easley set a track record of 24.06 on the half mile oval and held off the challenge of Ray Elder for the first 75 laps.

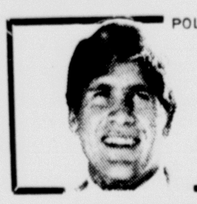

Elder dropped out due to mechanical problems and Easley won by a half lap. Jack McCoy, 1973 Grand National West Champion, took third.

Snyder traded

SEATTLE (UPI) — Dick Snyder, a veteran guard who averaged 18.1 points per game last year, Monday was traded from the Seattle SuperSonics to the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The Sonics will also swap first round picks with Cleveland in today's NBA draft. Seattle will now draft third and Cleveland eighth.

"A District Attorney you can trust"

Stan Roden thinks it's time to put the office of District Attorney back in the hands of the people.

Stan Roden is a practicing attorney and a resident of Santa Barbara. He is a graduate of Hastings Law School and served as a Deputy District Attorney in Kings and Santa Barbara Counties. He is a past president of the Barrister's Club and active member of the Santa Barbara Bar Association.

Stan Roden as Santa Barbara County prosecutor in 1968 and 1969 won 15 out of 19 felony cases alone compared to only 16 out of 30 for the entire District Attorneys staff in 1973.

Stan Roden had a 100% conviction rate in felony hard drug cases during his service as a Deputy District Attorney.

Stan Roden is a man who means business — a man who will bring qualified, competent leadership to the office of District Attorney.

Stan Roden will make the office serve the people of Santa Barbara County. He'll do that by taking a strong stand against hard drug pushers, by initiating litigation into consumer fraud and environmental pollution. Stan Roden offers strong leadership to prevent and deal with juvenile delinquency. Stan Roden will make the District Attorney's office run smoothly, efficiently, economically.

Stan Roden will not embarrass the administration of justice.

He'll bring more than rhetoric to the office of District Attorney.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will start off like a ball of fire today where work is concerned, but other interests will siphon off much of your steam.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It is still in your best interest to continue to be cautious with your money, particularly if doing business with strangers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An outsider will try to poke her nose into your family affairs today. The trouble is, you may be misguided by the advice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have in mind a well-thought-out way to handle a problem. Unfortunately, it's not likely you'll follow through on your plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Funds you've earmarked to meet specific obligations are going to be used for more frivolous things instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something you'll be doing with friends today will be tarnished by one in the group who doesn't quite fit in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're not likely to get as much co-operation from authority figures today as you'll need, unless you do a real sales jobs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be putting yourself out for others far more than they'll be extending themselves for you. To top it off, your efforts won't be appreciated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try your best today without expecting others to praise you. They won't. Do it for personal satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you're trying very hard to please is still indifferent to your efforts. Don't lose heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In a situation where you share an interest you have no right to expect the other guy to be more generous than you would be with him.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something you're very enthusiastic about isn't everything you'd like to believe it is. Stand back and take another look.

Opening lead—5♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Reese and Dormer point out that the normal carefree declarer will go down one at three notrump. He will win the opening heart lead; note that clubs are the suit to be established and lead a club. East will take the ace and lead a second heart to clear the suit for West.

South will still be able to make the hand if he has taken the second heart and worked out an end play against West. But the chances are that he will take the diamond finesse and complain about hard luck.

The careful declarer will try to count to nine sure tricks. He will see that he needs two diamonds. So, at trick two he will lead a spade to dummy's ace and lose the diamond finesse to his hand. West won't be able to hurt declarer with a heart lead. South will have time to clear the clubs and make his nine tricks.

What if West leads a second spade when he gets in with the king of diamonds? South will still be sure of his contract, since nothing bad can happen to him in the spade suit.

LOMPOC RECORD

OPINIONS

The columns of the Lompoc Record are open to all expressions of opinion consistent with good taste and the laws.

The Record's aim is to present facts in its news columns and opinions in its editorial columns.

Proposition 9, yes!

Californians on June 4 will have the opportunity to approve or deny the institution of the toughest political reform act ever presented to them by either the legislature or through the initiative process. That act is encompassed in Proposition 9 on the ballot.

The Proposition has been formulated by several citizens' groups, including Common Cause, the People's Lobby, and Ralph Nader's Citizen Action Group, and deals specifically with campaign financing and its regulation, financial disclosure, lobbyists, conflicts of interest, ballot preparation and incumbency. In addition, the proposition would establish a Political Fair Practices Commission charged with the non-partisan regulation of the proposition itself.

Without doubt, Proposition 9 promises to be the most vilified and most heralded initiative on the ballot, and perhaps the fact that it finally reached the voter through the initiative process rather than through the legislative process is a commentary on the need for just such a measure.

Political reform is a much-bandied about term, especially in election years, and especially in this Watergate-tainted political season. But when those who are elected, or re-elected, go to Sacramento, nothing much happens and the pragmatics of campaign rhetoric are replaced by the expediency of political power, leaving the electorate with a mouthful of ashes. Thus the initiative process, and thus, Proposition 9.

We have all had our fill of political corruption during the past year and a half, and Proposition 9 would go far toward making it ever so much more difficult for that type of practice to take place in California, much less be a governing force.

The Lompoc Record urges its readers to cast a decided YES vote for Proposition 9 on June 4.

New DMV program

The state's Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) is coming up with a revolutionary new testing program in a move to weed out or help the accident-causing motorist.

Preliminary and very tentative details on the plans were handed this reporter last week by George Hadley, Lompoc manager of DMV.

It's called "multi-treatment" or "selective testing concept." Work on the proposals was begun in September of last year under a mandate spelled out in legislation that became law a month earlier.

"The objective of the Selective Testing Pilot Program," literature provided by Hadley notes, "is to determine if the attitudes or driving habits of a problem driver can be altered through different methods of treatment."

"Briefly," the DMV continued, "the Selective Testing Pilot Program will test 10 different treatments for drivers in various categories according to their driving record. Drivers with multi-violations and - or accidents will receive in -depth licensing tests, including a 50-question written test, and diagnostic drive test with driver counseling, or an audio-visual (educational) presentation." It is contemplated the testing in this category will take about an hour to complete.

The DMV is studying proposals for expanded written tests for new drivers, plus skill tests "as well as high density traffic drive tests." Reaction time tests are planned for drivers with physical and mental deficiencies.

Good drivers or those labeled as such come off good. "A self-test booklet will be mailed to those in that category all along with the renewal notice. The completed test from this booklet will constitute the written test for this group if presented with the renewal notice."

Approximately 10 field offices will be selected for the in-depth testing portion of the pilot program for renewal applicants.

Target date for beginning the pilot program is Dec. 1 of this year. Hadley has no idea whether Lompoc would be selected for the program or not.

Planners and government generally apparently didn't get the word a few years back. If not then the flood of recreational vehicles clogging the beach areas and spilling over the surrounding countrysides should make the point that these specialized types of vehicles are going to be accorded their place in the scheme of things they'll carve a niche for themselves. Authorities report camper trucks, for example trying to park on the shoulders of roads leading to beach areas. About 50 encamped on Highway 1 at the Jalama Road turnoff; other flurries of camper trucks and other recreational vehicles were reported parked in dozens of spots on Lompoc streets and on county roads everywhere.

If all goes well Lompoc will have its own version of Allan Hancock College in the fall, albeit a modest version. Walter Conrad, college president tells me it's the trend for community colleges now to develop off-campus sites. It's kind of "take the education to the student;" instead of the past policy of trying to attract the students from many areas to one site. Conrad tells me the college will seek information on curriculum from a questionnaire that will be circulated to a cross section of the community. But the college will seek attitudes on curriculum from many sources. For those who have not followed all this, it is proposed that Hancock open a Lompoc facility at Hapgood School located at Olive Avenue and A Street.

The Hapgood facility would be in addition to programs under way at Cabrillo and Lompoc High Schools and at Vandenberg Air Force Base, according to Conrad.

Headway?

The strides Henry Kissinger has apparently made in bringing Syria and Israel to the bargaining table suggest the persuasiveness of the man, and also the exhaustion — emotional and military — of the situation. It has been remarked that military encounters do in fact give change; so might it be said that the school children who died in last week's holocaust may have induced a sense of disgust and, in turn, a slight motion, by both parties, in the direction of Mr. Kissinger's cease-fire line.

But there are very great difficulties ahead. It is significant that President Sadat of Egypt declined to criticize terrorists. Significant not because this suggests that Sadat is at this moment of high hope encouraging terrorist activity, but because, clearly he finds it imprudent to criticize the Palestinians.

Their problem will survive the cease-fire; and may well survive the incumbency of Henry Kissinger, even if the Democrats and Republicans join in a constitutional amendment appointing him Secretary of State for life.

Dr. Fayez Sayegh, who is the principal consultant to the Kuwait government in the United Nations, is a scholar of considerable renown, a man of gentle personal habit who is however unyielding in his insistence on the point that nothing can be done of any permanence in the Middle East without taking into account the settlement of the Palestinian problem. This everyone knows more or less abstractly. Dr. Sayegh and others know it, or think they know it, most concretely. And the notion that the cease fire having been arranged in the Golan Heights, and in the Sinai, peace is finally at hand, proves of course to be premature.

This is, as I say, widely known in the abstract. Year after year United Nations has voted resolutions demanding a settlement of the Palestinian refugees. But, says Dr. Sayegh, "the Palestinians cannot live by United Nations resolutions alone." Here Dr. Sayegh gets most rigoious, and at the expense of what we call Israel. "Israel is, because Palestine is not: and Palestine is not, only because Israel is. The being of Israel is therefore an act of elimination: it is the non being of Palestine." Dr. Sayegh, though trained in existentialism, speaks metaphysically.

And — Dr. Sayegh goes on — the Arab states can negotiate as much as they like respecting their own frontiers, but not at all respecting the rights of Palestinians, which are not theirs to trade off. "The Arab states have not been empowered by the Palestinian people and therefore they lack the competence and right to decide in its absence or on its behalf matters affecting its country and its state."

This is a point of some merit, both historically and politically. But it is the worst point to stress at a moment when progress is apparently being made. It is only necessary for the Israelis to become totally convinced nothing short of a whole restoration of Palestinian "rights" — defined here as the return to Palestinians of 95 per cent of the land on which Israel is now situated — in order to become convinced that to bargain at all is to participate in an elaborate ritual of national suicide.

Dr. Sayegh's dream of a pluralistic state in which the Israelis and the Arabs exercise power on a democratist one-man one-vote basis does little credit to Dr. Sayegh's appreciation of life as it is. The notion of a new state of Israbia where now Israel is cannot reasonably be proposed. It may have been wrong in 1947 for the countries of the world to sanction the partition of Palestine, but sanction it they did. It may be true that that sanction was contingent upon the full protection of Palestinian rights and that those rights were not thereafter protected: but the state of Israel was formed, it was — however imperfectly — the consummation of a vision, and it came at the end of a decade of heartbreak and genocide.

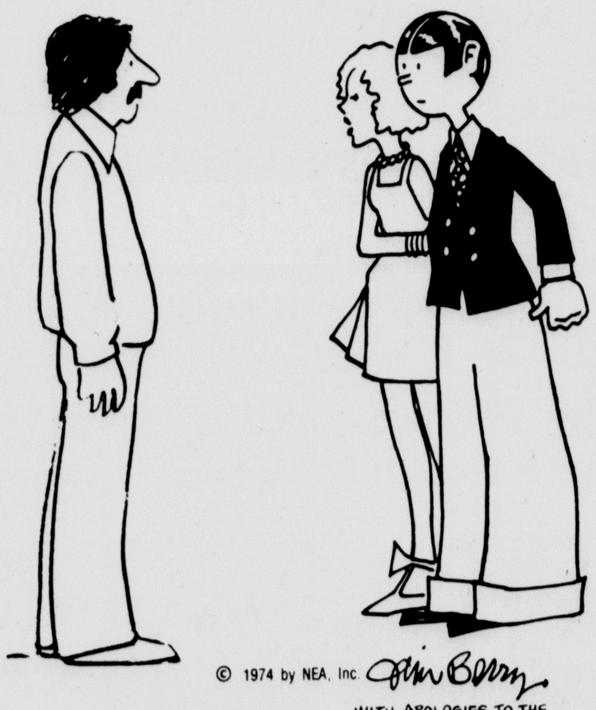

"Wishful thinking aside," says Dr. Sayegh, "between the rights of the people and the claims of Israel there can be no compromise. They are mutually exclusive. The search for a compromise has proved to be a futile pastime."

One can hope only that he is wrong, that it is not futile, and that such terms as "mutual exclusivity" will prove inappropriate. The Palestinians, in behalf of whom a great effort should be made, have lost a war. And they cannot resume effective fighting without the active aid of the Arabs. It is the effort to bring the Arabs to the conference table at which the survival of Israel is axiomatic that we struggle for now, and Mr. Kissinger appears to have made headway.

I'll be back

JUNE 1971 — It's fine to walk along Sansome Street in San Francisco's financial district in the sharp morning, to walk through the corridors of sun light and cool shadows that fall across the sidewalk. Electric cars with their clanging bells slide up and down Market Street. Flowers of brilliant color are sold at street corners.

It's all so fine and exciting. I'm up from drowsy San Jose, living in The City, just across the street from Golden Gate Park, working a summer job.

I reach 630 Sansome Street and take a crowded elevator (ah, the new faces) and get off at the seventh floor and bounce into room 702. That's my desk. That is Juan from Seattle over there and that guy with a beard is Bob and that beautiful female is Karen. We all work in the information division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Through that door are the offices of Ralph and Stan. We answer to them.

Good morning Juan! I think I can handle the farm market report now. Let me do it.

For this job, I compile field reports on price changes of livestock, poultry, fruits and vegetables, and grains in summary form: broccoli — demand fairly good. Mkt. steady. 14 bnchs 3.75 to 4.00; lettuce — demand good to very good. Mkt firm. 24s 4.50 to 5.00 mostly 5.00...feeder steers weak to 2.00 lower; feeder heifers steady...good dairy hay comparable to No. 2 leafy traded mostly $65 to 69 per ton roadside...

It takes about two hours to compile this info which we then send out by teletype to the wire services (UPI and AP) and they relay to newspapers and radio stations. Did you hear the guy on the radio reading the farm market report at 5 this morning? I wrote that. Yes, me.

Juan, Bob, and I return from our regularly scheduled coffee-break and the boss calls me in. Working for the government, he says, has a lot of benefits and security. He spells them out.

I spend the time before lunch filing stacks of one page agriculture reports from all over the world. The atmosphere is safe, the pace is relaxed in the office. After lunch, I write a brief news release by coping another one. Of course, I change a name or two. Bob says it is safe to adhere to how things were done in the past; the higher-ups in Washington, D.C. didn't fret, so that must be how they want it done.

In the late afternoon I find myself standing at the window and looking over San Francisco's skyline. Juan reads a magazine. Bob piddles around. There isn't much to do and that means work is going according to oil. We wait for five o'clock. I have the changing prices of broccoli and lettuce to look forward to...

AUGUST 1971 — This is my last week at the summer job. Actually, the job is a trainee position. My boss says I should think about coming back when I finish school next semester. He likes how I work.

Ah, good-bye for now though, I say silently. Goodbye to the happy San Francisco mornings and the fine and unusual restaurants and the lovely women and handsome men.

I won't be drinking delicious coffee and reading Charles McCabe in the Chronicle each morning at the JC Cafe, I know.

Yes, farewell to you people on the seventh floor. It was a nice and easy existence. I know I'll be coming back, for we all — sooner or later — long for that position.

Me, I'm going out for a while longer. Where, I don't know. Where life is unpredictable and demanding. Where work is not an exact copy of the page of yesterday. We young men are fools in that way.

But I'll be back. Save me a place.
